HORATIO, VISCOUNT NELSON

A CATALOGUE OF THE BOOKS, PAMPHLETS, ARTICLES, AND ENGRAVINGS RELATING TO NELSON, IN THE NORWICH
PUBLIC LIBRARY

"Thine island loves thee well, thou famous man,
The greatest sailor since the world began."—Tennyson.

"There is none like him, and there shall be none.
When England bears again as great a son,
He can but follow fame where Nelson led.
There is not and there cannot be but one."
Swinburne.

"We hear our Seaman's call
In the roll of battles won;
For he is England's admiral
Till the setting of her sun."
Meredith.

In the extensive collection of literature relating to Norfolk and Norwich, which forms an exceedingly valuable part of the Reference Department of the Norwich Public Library, is a large collection of books and pamphlets relating to Lord Nelson, Norfolk's most illustrious seaman. The following annotated and classified list of all the items in the collection or in the general library relating to Nelson (comprising 218 books, 39 pamphlets, 81 articles in periodicals and composite works, and 31 prints) will also serve as a select Nelson Bibliography, as it includes, with very few exceptions, all the important English books on Nelson. It contains several items published before Sir J. K. Laughton's bibliography, but not included therein. For the titles of important foreign books on Nelson, readers are referred to the excellent annotated bibliography appended to Sir J. K. Laughton's The Nelson Memorial, 1892, which has been of much assistance in the annotation of the present catalogue.

The entries of books published without a date have the abbreviation n.d. (= no date) after the titles, but wherever possible the date of publication has been added in square brackets. The absence of the name of the place of publication means that the book was published in London.

In the present catalogue only a few of the numerous magazine articles on Nelson have been included. Readers desirous of making an exhaustive study of the articles in periodical publications may obtain references to a great number of them by consulting the indices cited in the "Bibliography" section of this catalogue.

A reproduction of the Nelson portrait drawn by John Whichelo is given in No. 1 of Vol. 4 of the "READERS' GUIDE," which also contains a brief biographical sketch of Nelson.

BIBLIOGRAPHY.

ADMIRALTY LIBRARY. Subject catalogue of printed books. Part 1: Historical section. pp. 374. 1912.

This section comprises all the printed books in the Admiralty Library bearing on naval history and biography.

ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX. 1892-1910.

An index to periodicals and to general literature. Most of the volumes give references to articles on Nelson. The title was altered in 1905 to Annual Library Index.

BRITISH MUSEUM. Catalogue of additions to the manuscripts in the British Museum in the years 1894-1899. pp. 114-128. 1901.

Gives particulars of the Nelson papers, now in 91 volumes, which were purchased for the nation from Alexander Nelson Hood, Viscount Bridport.

— Catalogue of printed books. Needl.-Neth., columns 73-79. 1893.

— — Supplement. N.-Oze., columns 61-62. 1904.

Each volume gives particulars of numerous books and pamphlets on Nelson.

LAUGHTON, Sir John Knox. Nelson bibliography. In his "The Nelson Memorial," pp. 335-351. 1896.

Arranged in alphabetical order by authors' names. At the date of publication the author believed that his list contained "every work on the subject which has any biographical, historical, or literary value, and a great many that have none."

— — Second edition. pp. 335-351. 1899.

LAUGHTON, L. G. Carr. Bibliography of naval literature. In Lean's Royal navy list, pp. 685-718. 1907.

NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY. Selected list of works in the Library relating to naval history, naval administration, etc. pp. 145. New York. 1904.

POOLE'S Index to periodical literature; and five supplementary volumes, to 1906.

These volumes give numerous references to articles on Nelson.

"REVIEW OF REVIEWS." Index to periodicals. 1891-1902.

Most of these volumes give references to articles on Nelson.

ROYAL UNITED SERVICE INSTITUTION. Library catalogue. Part 2: Subject index to January 1st, 1908; with catalogues of accessions to the library, 1908-1914.

WATT, Robert. Bibliotheca Britannica. 4 v. 1824.

In vol. 4 under the headings "Navy, British," and "Nelson, Horatio," are given the titles of numerous books and pamphlets, with references to the author entries of them in vols. 1 and 2.

NELSON'S WRITINGS.

NELSON, Horatio, Viscount. The dispatches and letters of Vice Admiral Lord Viscount Nelson; with notes by Sir Nicholas Harris Nicolas. 7 v. Port., plans. 1844-46.

This invaluable collection of correspondence and other documents, public and private, covers the period 1777-1805. Sir J. K. Laughton (in Dict. of Nat. Biog., vol. 40, 1894) regards it as "the only work treating of Nelson's professional career which is to be implicitly trusted." Reviewed in Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine, vol. 56, 1844, pp. 775-785. On these letters is based E. Hallam Moorhouse's article "Nelson as seen in his Letters," in The Fortnightly Review, vol. 110, new series, 1911, pp. 713-727.

— Letters and despatches of Horatio, Viscount Nelson, K.B.; selected and arranged by John Knox Laughton. pp. xx., 456. 1886.

A selection, chiefly from the seven volumes edited by Sir N. H. Nicolas, with a few additions, "made with the view of bringing within a moderate compass Nelson's own exposition of his professional life." Reviewed in The Edinburgh Review, vol. 164, pp. 542-575. 1886.

— The Letters of Lord Nelson to Lady Hamilton; with a supplement of interesting letters by distinguished characters. 2 v. 1814.

"This work probably owed its existence to the distresses of the unfortunate woman to whom the Letters were addressed; and its appearance was justly and emphatically denounced in the 'Edinburgh Review' [vol. 23, 1814, pp. 398-410]. Such parts of those letters as are unobjectionable will be found in this collection."—Sir N. H. Nicolas (in 1844).

— Nelson's words and deeds: a selection from the dispatches and correspondence of Horatio Nelson; ed. by W. Clark Russell. pp. vii., 224. 1890.

The object of the book is "to submit the character and the more conspicuous of the features of the career of Horatio Nelson as they are described by his own pen." Most of the extracts are made from Nelson's unofficial letters.

— Letters of Lord Nelson to Sir Thomas Troubridge. In Mrs. Herbert Jones' "Some Norfolk worthies," pp. 13-49. Port. 1899.

Reprinted from The Century Magazine, November, 1888. The letters treat exclusively of the expedition to the Baltic, and they range from March until May, 1801.

- NELSON, Horatio, Viscount. Sketch of my life. In his "Dispatches and letters," vol. I, pp. 3-15, 1844.
- STOKES, Hugh, Compiler. What Nelson said? as found in his letters, dispatches, and the published notes of his private conversation. pp. 47. 1905.
Collection of Nelson's sayings, with the view of illustrating his genius.

GENERAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL.

- ALLEN, Joseph. Life of Lord Viscount Nelson, K.B. pp. xvi., 319. Port. 1853.
— — Abridged edition; with an introduction by Hugh Reginald Haweis. (Routledge's world library). pp. 160. 1886.
- [BARKER, M. H.]. The life of Nelson; revised and illustrated with original anecdotes, notes, etc., by the Old Sailor. pp. 486. Port., plan. 1839.
"The fullest collection of facts and anecdotes relating to Nelson yet given to the Public. Every printed authority has been consulted, and much new information inserted from the innumerable scattered Notices in Magazines, the "United Service Journal," Professional Newspapers, etc."—Sir H. N. Nicolas (in 1844).
- BERESFORD, Lord Charles, and H. W. WILSON. Nelson and his times. pp. viii., 232. Illus., ports. n.d. [1898].
A popular account of Nelson's life.
- Nelson and his times. (Her Majesty's Printers' Pictorial Library, vol. 2, no. 1). pp. 24. Illus., ports. 1897.
- BROWNE, G. Latham. Nelson: the public and private life of Horatio, Viscount Nelson, as told by himself, his comrades, and his friends. pp. xxxi., 472. Illus., ports. 1891.
"He has endeavoured, by a crude and miscellaneous compilation of paragraphs from other writers, to patch together something that may pass for a life of the hero; but the statement that his life 'told by himself, his comrades, and his friends,' is as inaccurate as the general effect of the whole."—The Athenæum, Dec. 20th, 1890, pp. 847-848.
- CALLENDER, Geoffrey. The life of Nelson. pp. xxxviii., 154. Maps, ports., illus. 1912.
A biographical sketch for youthful readers, reprinted from Sea Kings of Britain, 1911. The introduction deals with books about Nelson, the ships he sailed in, naval wars in his lifetime prior to the battle of St. Vincent, and naval tactics and manœuvres. Has a glossary (3 pp.) of naval terms.
- CHARNOCK, John. Biographical memoirs of Lord Viscount Nelson, etc., with observations, critical and explanatory. pp. xviii., 429., 79. Illus., port., plans. 1806.
The appendix of 79 pages consists of "Letters written by Lord Viscount Nelson, illustrative of various events related in the memoirs of his life," and "Ceremonial for the public funeral of the late Vice-Admiral Horatio Viscount Nelson." Captain Locker, the author's friend, supplied information regarding Nelson's early life, and many letters from Nelson to Captain Locker. The letters were inaccurately printed by Charnock, but were correctly printed in the seven volumes edited by Sir N. H. Nicolas.
- CHURCHILL, T. O. The life of Lord Viscount Nelson, Duke of Bronte, etc. pp. viii., 100. Illus. 1808.
"A wretched compilation, intended as the vehicle of some equally wretched engravings." Sir N. H. Nicolas (in 1844).
- CLARKE, G. S. Nelson. In the "Nineteenth Century," vol. 41, pp. 893-906. 1897.
A biographical sketch of Nelson, being a review of Capt. Mahan's "Life of Nelson," which the author regards as "incomparably the best life of Nelson that has yet appeared."
- CLARKE, James Stanier, and John M'ARTHUR. The life of Admiral Lord Nelson, K.B., from His Lordship's manuscripts. 2 v. Illus., ports. 1809.
Sir J. K. Laughton in 1896 (The Nelson Memorial) regarded the work as "the fullest and in many respects the best biography, but crowded with irrelevant and doubtful matter." Based on an extensive collection of letters and documents lent to the authors by various persons. The work has formed the basis of all subsequent biographies of Nelson.
- — 2nd edition: The life and services of Horatio, Viscount Nelson . . . from His Lordship's manuscripts. 3 v. Illus., ports. n.d. [1840].
- CLARKE, Richard. The life of Horatio, Lord Viscount Nelson . . . comprehending authentic and circumstantial details of his glorious achievements under the British flag, and a sketch of his parliamentary conduct and private character; with biographical particulars of contemporary naval officers; to which is added a correct narrative of the ceremonies attending his funeral. pp. 560., 15. Illus., port. n.d. [1813].
The book is little more than a gross plagiarism, with occasional additions, of Joshua White's "Memoirs of the professional life of the Right Honourable Horatio, Lord Viscount Nelson." 1806.

- CLOWES, Sir W. Laird. The genealogy of Nelson. In the "Nineteenth Century," vol. 42. pp. 755-765. 1897.
- COLOMB, Philip H. Nelson. In "From Howard to Nelson: twelve sailors"; edited by Sir John Knox Laughton. Port. pp. 435-468. 1907.
- DUNCAN, Archibald. The life of the Right Honourable Horatio Lord Viscount Nelson . . . including ample and authentic accounts of the brilliant victories obtained by his skill and intrepidity over the combined forces of the enemies of England in various parts of the world; with particulars of his political and private character, interspersed with interesting anecdotes of distinguished naval officers who have shared in the glorious achievements of this gallant British hero; to which is added a full account of the ceremonies of his funeral. pp. vi., 419., 10. Illus., ports., plans. London: printed and published by James Cundee and J. Nuttall, Liverpool. 1806.
- "This book, of no particular merit or value in itself, appears to be extremely rare."—Sir J. K. Laughton in his Nelson Memorial. It is not noted in Allibone's Dictionary of English and American Authors and Watt's Bibliotheca Britannica, and it is not in the British Museum.
- ELLISON, Owen, Editor. Lord Nelson: naval hero. (The biography books). pp. 96. Port. n.d. [1908].
- GYE, Clara E. E. Nelson: his life as told by himself. pp. 88. Illus., port. 1905.
- The author believes that in many of the earlier biographies contemporary gossip and prejudices have been permitted to colour many of the actual facts so that Nelson's character has been misjudged. The present short sketch consists chiefly of quotations from Nelson's own words and writings.
- HANNAY, David. Horatio, Viscount Nelson. In "Encyclopædia Britannica," vol. 19, pp. 352-358. 1911.
- Nelson and his biographers. In "Macmillan's Magazine," vol. 76, pp. 92-105. 1897.
- HARRISON, James. The life of the Right Honourable Horatio Lord Viscount Nelson. 2 v. 1806.
- "This Memoir was written under the dictation of Lady Hamilton, with the view of supporting her claims upon the Government; and it is disgraced by disparaging, and unjust allusions to Lady Nelson."—Sir N. H. Nicolas (in 1844). "No one statement in it can be accepted unless it is independently confirmed from other sources."—Sir J. K. Laughton in his Nelson, 1895.
- HOLME, Richard H. Horatio Nelson: England's sailor hero. pp. xii., 412. Ports., illus. n.d. [1905].
- A popular account of Nelson's life arranged in five sections: Previous to the battle off Cape St. Vincent; Battle off Cape St. Vincent; Battle of the Nile; Copenhagen; Trafalgar.
- HOOPER, James. Nelson of Norfolk: Norfolk centenary souvenir, 1905. pp. 63. Illus., ports. Norwich: E. C. Stringer. 1905.
- "An attempt to bring together, in text and illustrations, some of the most salient facts in Nelson's life, some of the most interesting of his surroundings, more especially of those connecting him with his native county."—Preface.
- JONES, Mrs. Herbert. Lord Nelson. In her "Sandringham, past and present," pp. 257-268. 1883.
- KERR, Mark. The spirit of Nelson. In the "Nineteenth Century," vol. 72, pp. 852-868. 1912.
- A brief pen-portrait of Nelson.
- LAMARTINE, A. de. Nelson (1758-1805). pp. 112. Paris: Hachette et Cie. 1853.
- "Southey boiled down and translated into inflated French."—Sir J. K. Laughton in his Nelson Memorial.
- LANG, John. A life of Nelson. pp. viii., 296. Illus., map. n.d. [1914].
- Simple account, for juveniles, of Nelson's life, his battles, and his adventures. His friendship with Lady Hamilton is dealt with as briefly as possible, and no attempt has been made to treat of the political condition of Europe during Nelson's later life.
- LAUGHTON, Sir John Knox. Horatio, Viscount Nelson. In "Dictionary of National Biography," vol. 40, pp. 189-207. 1894.
- Horatio, Viscount Nelson. In "Chambers's Encyclopædia," vol. 7, pp. 432-434. 1901.
- Nelson. (English men of action). pp. ix., 240. Port. 1895.
- A short life of Nelson. "Henceforth Laughton's, not Southey's "Life of Nelson," will be the popular Life, if readers desire something more than good literature, and if they retain any preference for historical accuracy."—The Saturday Review, Aug. 24, 1895, p. 243.

LAUGHTON, Sir John Knox. The Nelson memorial: Nelson and his companions in arms. pp. xvi., 351. Illus., ports. 1896.

No. 37 of 100 large paper copies.

— Second edition. pp. xvi., 351. Illus., ports. 1899.

Forms a complement to the author's Nelson, in the "English Men of Action" series. Dwells on the principal incidents of Nelson's life, describing the influences which tended to form his character, some of the men from whom he derived his inspiration, and some of those who worked with him. "The author has here portrayed him as a man, with a man's passions and a man's weaknesses, but as a man of transcendent genius, endowed with that grandest attribute of genius, the capacity of taking infinite pains."—Preface. The appendices include a chronology and a bibliography. Reviewed in The Spectator, Nov. 14, 1896, pp. 677-678.

LLOYD, Frederick. An accurate and impartial life of Viscount Nelson . . . comprehending authentic and circumstantial details of his glorious achievements, together with private anecdotes and various interesting particulars never before published. pp. iv., 303. Port. Ormskirk: J. Fowler. 1806.

Not given in Sir J. K. Laughton's bibliography.

LODGE, Edmund. Horatio, Viscount Nelson. In his "Portraits of illustrious personages of Great Britain," vol. 12. 1834.

Illustrated with an engraving of Nelson by W. Finden, from the original of Hoppner.

LONDON MAGAZINE. Nelson centenary number. Vol. 15, no. 87, October, 1905. Illus.

Has articles on "The fighting life of Nelson" by James Barr; "Nelson and the Victory" by Walter Wood; "Nelson's Nonpareil" (Lady Hamilton), by Rudolph de Cordova.

MAHAN, A. T. The life of Nelson: the embodiment of the sea power of Great Britain. 2 v. Illus., ports., maps, plans. 1897.

— Second edition, revised. pp. xix., 764. 1899.

The author was an American naval officer and historian. "Of Nelson the seaman . . . Captain Mahan stands now and henceforth as the one incomparable exponent."—Quarterly Review, vol. 187, 1898, pp. 126-152. Also reviewed in Edinburgh Review, vol. 186, 1897, pp. 84-113; Fortnightly Review, vol. 61 new series, 1897, pp. 895-910 (by W. O'Connor Morris); Nineteenth Century, vol. 41, 1897, pp. 893-906 (by G. S. Clarke), and Saturday Review, vol. 88, 1897, pp. 363-365 (by P. H. Colomb).

— The strength of Nelson. In "The National Review," vol. 46, pp. 413-427. 1905-6.

The author finds the strength of Nelson in his "inborn natural power to trust."

MATCHAM, George. Notes on the character of Admiral Lord Nelson in relation to the journal of Mrs. St. George. pp. 15. 1861.

Reprint of a letter to the Editor of "The Times," Nov. 6th, 1861.

— Observations on No. ccxxi of the Quarterly Review, with reference to Admiral Lord Nelson. pp. 12. Salisbury: Clapperton. [1862].

"Mr. Matcham, Nelson's nephew, was either very young when he last saw his uncle, or very old when these pamphlets were written. In either case, his recollections are of little value as evidence."—Sir J. K. Laughton in his Nelson Memorial.

MATCHAM, M. Eyre. The Nelsons of Burnham Thorpe: a record of a Norfolk family compiled from unpublished letters and notebooks, 1787-1842. pp. 306. Illus., ports. 1911.

A memoir chiefly grouped round the Rev. Edmund Nelson, Nelson's father, and his sister Catherine who married George Matcham in 1785, and died in 1842. Compiled chiefly from letters to Catherine from her father after her marriage. Presents a picture of Nelson's home at Burnham Thorpe. The latter part of the book tells the story of Lord Nelson at sea, Trafalgar, and his death, concluding with an account of the movements of Earl Nelson, the Boltons, and the Matchams. Reviewed in The Times Literary Supplement, June 15th, 1911, p. 228.

A memoir of the life of Admiral Lord Nelson. pp. 20. Norwich: J. Payne. n.d. [circa 1801].

A memoir of the life of Admiral Lord Nelson, with an appendix, containing the most authentic accounts of the actions at Aboukir, at Copenhagen, and off Cape Trafalgar, with plans explanatory of the situations of every ship in the hostile fleets at the time of commencing those engagements; 2nd ed. pp. 26. Plans. London: printed for B. Crosby & Co. [by Bacon, Norwich]. n.d. [1806?].

Memoirs of the life and achievements of the Right Honourable Horatio Lord Viscount Nelson; by a captain of the British Navy; 3rd ed. pp. 116. Port. 1805.

— Sixth edition; to which is added, a particular account of the funeral procession. pp. 124. Port. 1806.

Memoirs of the professional life and glorious achievements of the late Vice-Admiral, Lord Nelson; to which is added a circumstantial account of the grand funeral processions, and of the interment of this illustrious hero. pp. 46. Illus., port. Norwich: Stevenson and Matchett. n.d. [1806].

MOORHOUSE, E. Hallam. A century's praise of Nelson. In "The National Review," vol. 46, pp. 332-339. 1905-6.

Selections of the written praise, in prose and verse, of Nelson.

— Nelson in England: a domestic chronicle. pp. xi., 274. Illus., ports. 1913.

The author attempts "to trace all the English allusions in his [Nelson's] immense correspondence, to follow him to the places that he knew and visited," depicting the "many quiet years, many peaceful pursuits in Nelson's life when neither battle nor the beloved woman was the principal motive of his existence."—Foreword. "Miss Moorhouse's volume is a painstaking compilation which will add a touch here and there to the portrayal of Nelson's personality."—The Times Literary Supplement, March 13, 1913, p. 106.

MORRIS, William O'Connor. Horatio, Viscount Nelson. In "Encyclopædia Britannica"; 9th edition, vol. 17, pp. 321-324. 1884.

Lady Hamilton.

EDINBURGH REVIEW. Emma, Lady Hamilton, vol. 183, pp. 380-407. 1896.

In the course of the article the following works are noticed: The Hamilton and Nelson Papers, 2 v., 1893-91; Emma, Lady Hamilton, by H. Gamlin, 1891; Lady Hamilton and Lord Nelson, by J. C. Jeaffreson, 2 v., 1888; The Queen of Naples and Lord Nelson, by J. C. Jeaffreson, 2 v., 1889; Memoirs of Lady Hamilton, 1815; and Authentic narrative of the death of Lord Nelson, by W. Beatty, 1807, and 1895.

GAMLIN, Mrs. Hilda. Emma, Lady Hamilton: an old story retold. pp. xii., 299. Illus., ports. 1891.

Written "in the hope that a better insight into Lady Hamilton's character, gleaned from the correspondence of herself and her associates, may tend to elevate the memory of one whose failings have been unnecessarily magnified."—Preface. Well illustrated. "Of no authority."—Sir J. K. Laughton in his Nelson Memorial. Reviewed in The Athenæum, Jan. 9, 1892, pp. 46-47, 633.

— Nelson's friendships; with a prefatory note by John Hargreaves. 2 v. Illus., ports. 1899.

Written with the object of maintaining that the friendship of Nelson and Lady Hamilton "was absolutely free from the charge of dishonour and actual moral stain."—Preface. "As a contribution to Nelson's history it can scarcely be taken seriously."—The Athenæum, May 13, 1899, p. 593.

HANNAY, David. Emma, Lady Hamilton. In "Encyclopædia Britannica," vol. 21, p. 885. 1910.

JEAFFRESON, John Cordy. Lady Hamilton and Lord Nelson: an historical biography based on letters and other documents in the possession of Alfred Morrison, Esq., of Fonthill, Wiltshire. 2 v. 1888.

In the course of the memoir the author examines the claims made by Lady Hamilton and her friends that she rendered important services both to the English Government and to the royal family of Naples. "Mr. Jeaffreson proves clearly and satisfactorily that these claims are based on misrepresentations and misstatements."—The Athenæum, Nov. 12, 1887, pp. 631-632; see also pp. 675 and 710. MOORHOUSE, E. Hallam. Nelson's Lady Hamilton. pp. xii., 376. Illus., ports. 1906.

A careful study of Lady Hamilton's career, largely based on her own letters and contemporary tributes. Miss Moorhouse's "Nelson's Lady Hamilton" is a dispassionate reading of a story which . . . few writers have told more impartially and at the same time more sympathetically than she has."—The Times Literary Supplement, Dec. 14, 1906, pp. 418-419. Reviewed in The Athenæum, Feb. 23, 1907, p. 217-218.

[PAGET, John]. Lady Hamilton. In "Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine," vol. 87, pp. 417-429. 1860.

"An interesting sketch drawn mainly from the imperfect materials at the disposal of Nicolas and Pettigrew: to this Mr. Paget has added a supplementary article (Blackwood's Mag., May, 1888) severely, but unjustly, criticising Jeaffreson's examination of Lady Hamilton's claims, and especially in reference to the entry of the fleet into the harbour of Syracuse."—Sir J. K. Laughton (Dict. of Nat. Biog., 1890).

TURQUAN, Joseph, and Jules d'AURIAC. A great adventuress: Lady Hamilton and the Revolution in Naples (1753-1815). pp. xviii., 340. Illus., ports. 1914.

By two French authors who, while not attempting to diminish Nelson's glory as a naval commander, make a strong indictment against his character. They say "We have found him cruel by nature, insubordinate towards his superiors, the adversary, not only of the liberal views that do honour to England, but of all that did not proceed from the Divine Right." Reviewed in The Times Literary Supplement, April 30, 1914, p. 212.

Naples and Caracciolo.

BADHAM, F. P. Nelson at Naples: a journal for June 10-30, 1799, refuting recent misstatements of Captain Mahan and Professor J. K. Laughton. pp. 48. 1900.

The author holds to Southey's view that the Naples incident was "A deplorable transaction, a stain upon the memory of Nelson and upon the honour of England."

JEAFFRESON, John Cordy. The Queen of Naples and Lord Nelson: an historical biography based on MSS. in the British Museum and on letters and other documents preserved amongst the Morrison MSS. 2 v. 1889.

Supplementary to the author's Lady Hamilton and Lord Nelson. Written with the object of refuting the libellous allegations and misrepresentations made by M. Gaglière in his La Reine Marie-Caroline de Naples, and of proving that Marie Caroline was a virtuous Queen, entitled to admiration and compassion. Reviewed in The Athenæum, April 27th, 1889, pp. 529-530.

LAUGHTON, Sir John Knox. Nelson at Naples. In "The Athenæum," Aug 26th, 1899, and April 21st, 1900, pp. 498-499.

The first article deals with the controversy between Captain A. T. Mahan and F. P. Badham, and the second draws attention to the facts in the journal of the Chevalier Micheroux (discovered in 1899) regarding the eventful days of June, 1799, and Nelson's conduct in respect to the capitulation of the castles Uovo and Nuovo. See also note thereon by F. P. Badham in The Athenæum, May 5th, 1900, p. 565, and his Nelson at Naples, 1900.

NELSON IN FICTION.

BAILEY, H. C. The god of clay.

Relates the principal episodes in Napoleon's career. Nelson and Hood are among the characters.

BLACKMORE, R. D. Springhaven: a tale of the great war.

Story of the threatened invasion of England by Napoleon in 1805. Napoleon and Nelson make their appearance, and the battle of Trafalgar is one of the scenes.

BRADY, Cyrus Townsend. The two captains: a romance of Bonaparte and Nelson.

Story of Nelson and Napoleon, in the Mediterranean, opening in 1793 and concluding with an account of the battle of the Nile.

CAPEs, Bernard. The extraordinary confessions of Diana Please.

Story of an adventuresome who goes to Paris, and finally becomes involved in the insurrection at Naples in 1799. Portrays Nelson, Lady Hamilton, the King and Queen of Naples, and describes the execution of Caracciolo.

CHAMIER, Frederick, Capt. Ben Brace, the last of Nelson's Agamemnons.

Virtually a life of Nelson, supposed to be told by Ben Brace, who describes himself as "Nelson's coxswain and valet." The author claimed in 1835 that "the biographical part concerning Lord Nelson is more correct than any which has yet been published." Sketches the naval battles during the period 1797-1816.

— Tom Bowling: a tale of the sea.

Account of naval events in Nelson's time, commencing about 1780. Lieut. Richard Bowen is one of the prominent characters. The capture of Martinique in 1794, and the events of the subsequent year occupy a considerable portion of the book.

COOPER, J. Fenimore. Wing-and-Wing; or, Le Feu-Follet.

Describes the adventures of the gallant Raoul Vvard, a captain of a French craft, a leading feature of the book consisting in bringing together sailors of different nations—English, French, Yankee, and Italian—and putting them in the same scenes on the waters of the Mediterranean during 1789-99. Nelson is one of the characters, and the Caracciolo incident forms part of the story.

CROUCH, Archer Philip. Nellie of the "Eight Bells."

Tale of the days of Nelson, centering round a young girl at the "Eight Bells" Inn at Portsmouth. Part of the story is concerned with the sea, Nelson, and the battle of Trafalgar.

DOYLE, Sir A. Conan. Rodney Stone.

Picture of English life in the early days of the Nineteenth Century, with glimpses of Beau Brummel, Nelson, Lady Hamilton, and other celebrities.

EDEN, C. H. Afloat with Nelson.

A story of naval adventures from the battle of the Nile to that of Trafalgar. For juveniles.

FITCHETT, W. H. The Commander of the Hironnelle.

Graphic description of naval life in Nelson's time, including the battle of St. Vincent, and Nelson in the Mediterranean and the West Indies. For juveniles.

GILSON, Charles, Capt. The lost empire.

Relates the scheme of Napoleon, when confined in Egypt by the battle of the Nile, to make a counter-attack in India, in alliance with Tippoo Sahib. The hero is a British naval officer, taken prisoner from Nelson's fleet, and the action takes place in several countries.

GOODSALL, Robert H. In Nelson's day.

A story of naval adventure from the battle of the Nile to that of Trafalgar. For juveniles.

HARRISON, Frederick. "England expects": a story of the last days of Nelson.

A tale for juveniles, relating the adventures of two boys who first become messengers between Lord Barham and the Admiralty, and are finally present at the battle of Trafalgar.

HENTY, G. A. At Aboukir and Acre.

The background of this story for juveniles is the operations of Nelson and Abercrombie in connection with Napoleon's invasion of Egypt.

HENTY, G. A. By conduct and courage: a story of the days of Nelson.

A naval story for juveniles in which Nelson figures. Includes an adventure in Corsica with Nelson, and accounts of the battles of Camperdown and St. Vincent.

HUTCHINSON, Horace G. A friend of Nelson.

Story of Nelson and the Baltic campaign in 1801.

KINGSTON, W. H. G. Dick Cheveley; his adventures and misadventures.

A sea story for juveniles, in two chapters of which a sailor recounts his life and adventures when under Nelson.

LEIGHTON, Robert. With Nelson in command.

Story of the battle of Copenhagen, in which Nelson, Hardy, and Hyde Parker appear.

LEMON, Ida, pseud. (Mrs. Ida Hildyard). The turquoise ring.

Story of adventure, for juveniles, in which Nelson appears, and the battles of Copenhagen and Trafalgar are included. Half the action takes place at Yarmouth.

MCLWRAITH, Jean N. A Diana of Quebec.

A romance of Canada of the days of French-Canadian hostility, opening in 1782. Nelson as a fascinating little post-captain, makes love to the heroine.

MARSH, Frances. A romance of old Folkestone.

Story of the daughter of a great French house who married an English admiral at Folkestone. Among the characters are Nelson, Lady Hamilton, and Romney.

OLLIVANT, Alfred. The Gentleman: a romance of the sea.

Story of a Napoleonic plot to capture Nelson in 1805, immediately before Trafalgar. The author of the plot is "The Gentleman," a flashing swordsman of the Irish Legion, and the scene is the strip of Sussex coast from Lewes to Pevensey, and the sea.

OXLEY, J. Macdonald. Diamond Rock.

The naval adventures of a youth during the years 1803-05 at the West Indies, concluding with his service on board the "Victory" at Trafalgar.

PICKERING, E. In press-gang days.

A sea story for juveniles, including the battle of the Nile.

ROWE, John G. In Nelson's day.

Sea story for juveniles, opening at the end of the year 1792 at Cromer, where part of the action takes place. Nelson is a prominent character, and the battles of St. Vincent and Trafalgar are described.

RUSSELL, W. Clark. The yarn of Old Harbour Town.

A love story, giving a picture of sea and harbour life in 1805, and a glimpse of Nelson on his way to Trafalgar.

SCHUMACHER, Henry. The Fair Enchantress: a romance of Lady Hamilton's early years.

Deals with Lady Hamilton's relations with Romney, and her career to the time of her marriage with Sir William Hamilton. Has good illustrations of Romney's portraits of Lady Hamilton.

— Nelson's last love.

Sequel to "The Fair Enchantress."

SHAW, F. H., Capt. In the days of Nelson.

A story, for juveniles, of a boy's adventures among pirates, and during the battle of the Nile.

SLADEN, Douglas. The Admiral: a romance of Nelson in the year of the Nile.

"I have endeavoured . . . to present the character of Nelson exactly as it was in 1798 and the first half of 1799; and to present a general view of the historical events in which he formed the central figure."—Preface. The author studied the most important works dealing with Nelson, and a large part of the book is in Nelson's own words.

STABLES, Gordon. For England, home, and beauty: a story of battle and the breeze.

Story, for juveniles, of naval life on shore and at sea, including an account of Nelson at the battle of Trafalgar.

— Hearts of oak: a story of Nelson and the navy.

With the exception of Nelson's early days at Burnham Thorpe, the story deals solely with his doings and deeds afloat from the time he joined the service until his death at Trafalgar.

WATSON, Helen H. (Mrs. Herbert A. Watson). Andrew Goodfellow.

A romance of Plymouth in the year 1805. The principal character is a naval lieutenant who is fatally wounded at Trafalgar. Nelson figures in the tale.

WOOD, Walter. Peter the powder boy.

Story for juveniles, telling of Peter, a powder-monkey on the "Victory" at the battle of Trafalgar, and his subsequent adventures at Gibraltar and elsewhere.
